Overhead Door Corporation

Overhead Door Corporation is the company responsible for pioneering the garage door and opener industry with the development of the first upward acting sectional garage door in 1921 while the first electric door opener followed in 1926. That innovation continues today with a commitment to an ongoing research and development program that continually introduces new, high quality products for residential and commercial applications.

Overhead Door Corporation is also a major supporter of the DFW economy. The corporation's corporate office is located in Lewisville, TX.
